What is the rate of wages at which they are paid ? and report at the regular business meeting this (Saturday) evening. The prospects of this organization for usefulness and permanence are all that could be desired. Nearly three hundred members have already signed the roll and the best possible spirit prevails throughout. The Board of Officers and Directors held their first meeting on Wednesday evening at the house of one of their own number and transacted a large amount of important business. It has been decided that the reading room shall be kept open every day except government holidays, from 10 a. M. to 10 P. M.

6. What is the rate of wages at which they are paid?

Answer—The rate of wages which the Indian receives on the cane plantations in Mauritius does not exceed seven and a half dollars per month, which rate includes food and medical care, etc. Laborers by the day for short jobs get from 25 to 30 cents, and provide themselves with everything. Rice is their staple article of food, and in Mauritius the best qualities of rice cost from 35 to 5 dollars per bag of 164 lbs. in the shops. But I have seen it as high as seven dollars a beg during periods of scarcity in some parts of India, and in seasons of drought in the localities where the best kinds of rice are grown. Of course, wholesale or for a large quantity, prices are less than the above, which are those of retail dealers. The wages of newly-introduced limingrants are one or maybe two dollars less per month than the above, which is for mon who have served their industrial residence. Of the 7½ dollars the laborer receives from 3½ to 4 dollars in money, and the balance in food, etc. If I mind right, the newly-introduced laborer receives two dollars per month for the first year, $2.25 per month for the second year, $2.50 the third, $2.75 per month the fourth, and $3 per month for the first year, $2.25 per month the scale of food is 11 lbs. of rice per week, a small quantity of doll, i. e., split peas, ghee, rancid butter, excess and quantity of doll, i. e., split peas, ghee, rancid butter, excess not oil, salt fish, salt, pepper, chills, soap, and a small quantity of currie stuff. cially the former.

7. Are they generally strong and hearty?

Answer—There are strong, powerful men among the Indians, but as a rule they are not big men. However, they are proportionally well made, have more the appearance of agility than strength, and they are stronger and more enduring than at sight they would appear to be. They are generally timid and cautious with strangers, frank and hearty with their equals, and respectful to their superiors.

8. Are they subject to much disease?

Answer—When well fed they are not more subject to disease than any other race. association will be held this evening at half past seven o'clock and that a large attendance is desired. -In our report last week of the public opening exercises, the name of Rev. Dr. Hyde was accidentally omitted from the list of speakers. The Doctor is a member of the association and one of its best friends, and we regret exceedingly that this over-

10. Do they give trouble by frivolous or groundless com-plaints sgainst their employers?

Answer-Occasionally they do, but such complaints are unished by law, and they are by no means frequent.

11. How are difficulties between them and employers set and servanis—engaged Indian laborers on a plantation—are settled on the plantation by the Inspector of Immigrants. Others of importance by the stipendiary magistrate of the dis-Factory and Rice Mill, (all of brick) of Mr. J. A. Hopper, of which we gave an extended notice some of the laborers?

Answer—Complaints of this kind are not unknown in Mauritius. But to judge from results, it would be difficult to say that the interferences of the authorities were unnecessary or not. Of course the Government would not allow any of its servants, without a grave reason or cause, to interfere between a master and his servants. On the other hand, had the Government cause, on complaint lodged by the laborer, to believe that the laborer was being unfairly treated, a searching inquiry into the whole matter would be made by a magistrate or other duly qualified person, and the cause of trouble exposed to the light of day and the offender duly punished. By the appointment of inspectors of immigrants to investigate on the spot the complaints of planters against their Indian laborers, and laborers against masters, cases of great cry and little wool have been put down. And besides these cases, often too frivolous for bringing before a magistrate, are at once settled, instead af being allowed to fester and canker and become sores, giving endiess trouble to cut out and heal.

13. What are the advantages to be derived from introducing East Indians?

Answer—From the forcement it will be seen that the Indian.

It was still open for signatures. Any further information on the subject to be of value, must, in his opinion, be got from India.

Mr. Justice Judd thought that a memorial like this should not be sent to the King over the heads of His Majesty's constitutional advisers.

Mr. Davis said the memorial spoken of was not before the meeting. He had been much interested in the statements by Mr. Carter which were all new to him. Mr. William Parsons Avis, who died in this city on Saturday, at an advanced age, was in early life engaged in business in this city, and subsequently in New Orleans, Alton, Ill., Honolulu, Sandwich Islands, and in California, at which last-named place he was financially unsuccessful. He was employed as a "helper" in the blacksmith shop of Mr. G. West, and his employer gives him the reputation of being a sober and industrious man. Nor so .- The Gazette of this week in speaking of a deceased Chinaman says : " He landed on these shores poor, and was sold, with others of his countrymen for his passage money, and was purchased by the late Dr. Lathrop." This is utterly untrue, and a libel on this country and people. There never was a Chinaman or any other indentured servant "sold" or 'purchased" in these Islands, and the writer of the claborate obituary of Akona, ignorant as he evidently is in regard to everything pertaining to Hawaii nei, should, out of common decency, make inquiries in the proper quarter before he puts such reckless and libellous statements into print. The man in question was no more sold than are the majority of laborers who came here under contracts which are subsequently transferred with the laborer's consent. 1. What is the population of Mauritius?
